

Gerald Häge, Diplom-Kaufmann

Founder and owner of WWW.HPNBOOST.COM

Having completed his studies in business administration at Tübingen University and at London Business School, Gerald Häge started his professional career in 1996. He was serving in responsible positions in various mid-sized industrial plants, always linked to internationally operating, multinational corporations. Gerald Häge has contributed as Business Administration Manager and as HR Director to the successful development of a medical device manufacturer (JOMED, taken over by Abbott). Later he worked in the international project-management landscape (Automotive, Odelo) and in business consulting (RWT Reutlingen). His professional expertise is spanning all phases in the lifecycle of companies: Start and growth, going public, integration, closing. Today he edits scientific essays and maintains professional relationships with professors and academic staff from various universities. On top, there is a decent network-basis with well-known, internationally operating investors available.
